

Who might be interested?

Your worker might be interested if he or she:

- Has a source of income other than L&I benefits.
- Wants to return to part-time work.
- Is not interested in retraining for another occupation.
- Is eligible (or soon will be) for any retirement benefits, such as Social Security or a union pension.
- Prefers to resolve the claim and no longer receive L&I paperwork.

Settling your injured worker's L&I claim

A new option for injured workers over 55

What's a structured settlement?

1. You, your injured worker and L&I agree to a sum the worker would receive instead of a monthly time-loss benefit. It would be delivered in a:
  - Series of fixed, cash payments.
  - Distributed to the worker within a relatively short period of time.
2. Medical benefits may continue for your employee's authorized workplace injury.
3. In most cases, a settlement closes the claim, and sometimes this can reduce your premium costs.

Who is eligible?

Injured workers who are age 55 or over and have an accepted claim with L&I that is at least six months old.

Who is involved in a settlement agreement?

If you pay workers' compensation insurance premiums to L&I, the agreement involves your worker, L&I and you – if the claim still impacts your premiums. If not, then only the worker and L&I participate.

If you are self-insured, just you and your injured worker participate. In either case, the negotiated settlement must be agreed to by all participants. Settlements are strictly voluntary.

Will settling a claim affect my premiums?

L&I staff can determine whether a proposed settlement would reduce the claim costs used to calculate your premiums.

What will the process involve?

L&I will need a detailed application and any supporting materials you have not already provided. To view the current contents of your worker's claim, visit L&I's Claim and Account Center at www.ClaimInfo.Lni.wa.gov.

May I contact my injured worker about a settlement?

Yes, but only to discover if the worker is interested. Since L&I leads the negotiations, please do not discuss specific settlement terms or dollar amounts with the worker.

Who approves a settlement?

All agreements must be reviewed and approved by the Board of Industrial Insurance Appeals. The agreement goes into effect 30 days after approval. Any party to the settlement may cancel for any reason during the 30 days.

How can I begin the settlement process?

Either you or your injured worker may begin the settlement process by submitting an application to L&I. Since a settlement can involve complex legal issues affecting your business, you may want to hire an attorney or financial advisor.

Does my employee still get benefits during the process?

Yes. Your employee's workers' compensation benefits continue as authorized until the settlement is final.
